Law in 1960-61. His article, "The Status of the Federal Government Lawyer is Important to the Entire Legal Profession," was in the American Bar Association Journal, April 1961.

W. Lloyd Warner is University Professor of Social Research, Michigan State University. He holds the M.A. degree from Cambridge University, and has taught at the University of Chicago, Radcliffe College, and Harvard University. Among the extensive studies of the American community in which he has participated is the distinguished Yankee City series. The present article represents in substantially unchanged form a chapter from a forthcoming book, The American Federal Executive, by Professor Warner as senior author and the following colleagues: Paul P. Van Riper, Professor in the Graduate School of Business and Public Administration, Cornell University, and author of History of the United States Civil Service; Norman H. Martin, Professor of Management, New York University, and coauthor with Professor Warner of Industrial Man; and Orvis F. Collins, Assistant Professor in the Department of Personnel and Production, Michigan State University. The book will be published in 1962 by the Yale University Press.
